Introduction

1. The Working Group on the Universal Periodic Review, established in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1, held its twenty-second session from 4 to 15 May 2015. The review of Bulgaria was held at the 8th meeting, on 7 May 2015. The delegation of Bulgaria was headed by the Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs, Katia Todorova. At its 14th meeting, held on 12 May 2015, the Working Group adopted the report on Bulgaria.

2. On 13 January 2015, the Human Rights Council selected the following group of rapporteurs (troika) to facilitate the review of Bulgaria: Côte d'Ivoire, Ireland and Pakistan.

3. In accordance with paragraph 15 of the annex to Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 and paragraph 5 of the annex to Council resolution 16/21, the following documents were issued for the review of Bulgaria:

(a) A national report (A/HRC/WG.6/22/BGR/1);

(b) A compilation prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) (A/HRC/WG.6/22/BGR/2);

(c) Summary prepared by OHCHR (A/HRC/WG.6/22/BGR/3).

4. A list of questions prepared in advance by Belgium, the Czech Republic, Germany, Liechtenstein, Mexico, the Netherlands, Norway, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland was transmitted to Bulgaria through the troika.<sup>1</sup> These questions are available on the extranet of the universal periodic review.

I. Summary of the proceedings of the review process

A. Presentation by the State under review

5. The delegation stated that the national report had been prepared through a cooperative and transparent process with the participation of relevant State bodies and based on the valuable input of civil society representatives. The draft was published on the official page of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs for broad public discussions.

6. Since its first universal periodic review, the Government has made efforts to implement the recommendations of the review and to enhance the capacity of the human rights mechanisms. Bulgaria submitted a voluntary midterm report in 2013. The delegation highlighted the significant progress achieved in strengthening the institutional and legislative framework for the promotion and protection of human rights.

7. In 2013, the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights was established in order to improve coordination among the relevant authorities and representatives of civil society in implementing the international human rights obligations of Bulgaria. Bulgaria introduced the practice of establishing working groups in the process of follow-up to the universal periodic review recommendations. The national human rights institutions had served as members of those working groups.

<sup>1</sup> Circulation by the universal periodic review secretariat of the advanced questions submitted by Sweden was delayed owing to technical reasons.

8. In 2011, the Commission for Protection against Discrimination and the Ombudsman were accorded “B” status by the International Coordinating Committee of National Human Rights Institutions. The Ombudsman had been acting as a national preventive mechanism after the recent amendments to the Ombudsman Act.

9. Since 2011, the National Council for Cooperation on Ethnic and Integration Issues, a government consultative body, has been coordinating and monitoring the implementation of the National Action Plan for the Decade of Roma Inclusion 2005–2015.

10. The delegation stated that the recommendations of the Council of Europe and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) had been taken into consideration during the drafting of the Electoral Codes, which came into force in 2014.

11. The delegation stated that the Government paid special attention to all those recommendations that called for the reform of the judiciary as it considered judicial reform an important area for the protection of human rights. The recommendations of the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers had been taken into consideration during the drafting of the 2012 amendments to the Judicial System Act. The updated strategy for continuing the reform of the judiciary, which was adopted in 2015, set the goal to modernize the judiciary and to complete the reform within the following seven years. The key priority of the reform was to provide full guarantees for the independence of the judiciary and ensure its effective functioning.

12. Progress was documented in setting up a mechanism for the compensation of those whose human rights had been violated. The Government had established a procedure for compensating citizens and legal entities for damages resulting from unreasonable delays in civil, administrative and criminal procedures. The National Assembly tasked the Government to submit an annual report on the implementation of the decisions of the European Court on Human Rights against Bulgaria. In 2014, the Government adopted a decision for a one-time payment of compensation to all individual complaints for which damages were recommended by the United Nations human rights treaty bodies. In 2015 the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights approved a legal mechanism for financial compensation following the recommendations of the treaty bodies on individual complaints.

13. During the reporting period, Bulgaria acceded to a number of international human rights instruments, including the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness. The delegation expressed the commitment of Bulgaria to ratifying the Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance. Bulgaria had presented its reports to the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. It had also issued a standing invitation to all special procedures mandate holders of the Human Rights Council.

14. In the reporting period, Bulgaria had achieved progress in enhancing the national capacity for the promotion and protection of human rights. The human rights situation had improved, though certain areas required further efforts. Having that in mind, the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights had approved national human rights priorities that included the protection of the rights of the child, persons with disabilities and of migrants and refugees, enhancement of gender equality, the promotion of ethnic and religious tolerance and the effective integration of Roma.

15. The delegation expressed its gratitude to all those delegations that had submitted advance questions and provided the responses to those questions. In response to the influx of refugees in 2013, the Government had improved the living conditions of those in need of international protection and constructed new facilities and infrastructure with a capacity of 6,000 people. Progress had also been documented in respect of the registration and the processing of requests for international protection.

16. In 2014, the Government had adopted the National Integration Strategy for Individuals Granted International Protection in Bulgaria (2014–2020), which paid special attention to vulnerable persons with specific needs and to unaccompanied minors. Children were provided with legal aid, health care and guaranteed the right to continue their education. With regard to the appointment of guardians or trustees for unaccompanied minors, a draft law which would allow the Agency for Social Assistance to appoint a representative of the child, was forwarded to the consideration of the National Assembly.

17. Concerning the questions regarding hate crime and speech, and intolerance, the delegation stated that its legislation provided for a solid legal framework for combating all cases of hate crime, racism, and xenophobia and the Criminal Code recognized each racial motivation as an aggravating circumstance in criminal offences. Draft amendments to the Code, introducing the criminalization of public incitement to violence or hate on religious grounds were being considered by the National Assembly.

18. There was a substantial improvement in the interaction between the Prosecutor's Office and the investigating authorities in identifying and reporting discriminatory motives at the earliest possible stage of pretrial proceedings. Although sexual orientation and gender identity were not explicitly defined as aggravating circumstances in the Criminal Code, such elements of the crime had been taken into account during the trial and the judgements of courts. In that respect, training was regularly provided to enhance the qualification of prosecutors. Public awareness measures were carried out to promote tolerance and to address hate speech and incitement to racial or ethnic violence in political discourse and in the media.

19. The National Roma Integration Strategy (2012–2020) was to be implemented in two phases: 2012–2014 and 2014–2020. Subsequently, 28 regional strategies and 220 municipal action plans for the integration of the Roma were adopted by taking into consideration the needs and specifics of local communities. The Strategy considered education the first priority of the integration policy. Efforts were increased to strengthen the integration of children of Roma origin into the general education system. Some measures were also taken to reduce school dropouts among the Roma children. The Ministry of Education and Science, in cooperation with the Regional Education Inspectorates and the municipalities, carried out monitoring of kindergartens and schools to avoid the formation of special classes for children belonging to ethnic groups.

20. Regarding the questions on prison conditions and overcrowding, the delegation stated that two new detention centres had been opened and a project had been implemented to improve the conditions of detention centres and prisons. The authorities had been working together with Norway on a joint project to introduce electronic monitoring of selected categories of offenders in order to reduce the number of prisoners.

21. With regard to the questions concerning the support of families with children with disabilities, and the juvenile justice system, the delegation stated that the legislation provided for equal opportunities and social inclusion of children with disabilities and that financial support was provided to families raising children with disabilities. Several measures had been taken to improve the legislation on juvenile justice.

22. Bulgaria had also been strengthening its measures to ensure non-discrimination and equal opportunities for people with disabilities, as well as their integration in all areas of public life.

23. Concerning lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender persons, the authorities have continued to pursue consistent policies aimed at preventing and eliminating any form of discrimination, including against such persons.

24. With regard to the question on domestic violence, the delegation stated that the Government, in cooperation with non-governmental organizations (NGOs), had implemented measures to combat domestic violence. The Alliance for Protection against Domestic Violence provided for monitoring of compliance with international regulations and for ensuring maximum protection for the victims. Regular public campaigns and initiatives were carried out to raise public awareness on domestic violence and to increase knowledge about the existing protection procedures. The delegation also pointed to the social services in place which provided support to victims of domestic violence.

25. Regarding the question on the scope of sexual assault offences, the delegation stated that those offences were included in the legislation and that lack of consent was a necessary precondition for fulfilling the corpus delicti and the consent must be given based on the victim's free will.

26. In response to the questions on human trafficking, the delegation reiterated that the National Commission for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings continued working with vulnerable groups, especially the Roma community, women and children. The Government had implemented several measures to prevent human trafficking for the purpose of labour and sexual exploitation, provide assistance to victims of human trafficking, strengthen the prosecution of perpetrators of trafficking in women and children, and improve cooperation with the respective authorities of other countries in investigating transnational forms of trafficking.

27. The delegation emphasized that the 2015 Anti-Corruption Strategy established an independent anti-corruption body with guarantees of transparency in the appointment its management and staff.

28. Regarding the question on media ownership, the delegation stated that the Government presented its programme in 2015, foreseeing new regulations for the acquisition and merger of the media, aimed at eliminating the possibility of influence on the media environment by a single owner.

29. In response to questions, the delegation reported that the issue of the ratification of the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance had been discussed within the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights. It was concluded that a review of the national legislation was needed to introduce the definition of forced disappearance and the creation of an effective mechanism for compensation of the victims and their families. In this respect, a working group had been established to work on draft amendments to the legislation. The delegation stated that Bulgaria would consider acceding to the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families when an agreement had been reached within the European Union on that issue.

30. Concerning the questions on the implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court and on a possible ratification of the amendments to the crime of aggression, the delegation stated that the legislation was fully in compliance with the Statute in respect of the criminalization of the offences under its scope. Concrete steps for the ratification of the amendments had not yet been taken.

31. Regarding the question about the representation of civil society organizations in the work of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights, the delegation explained that there were no requirements for prior registration for the participation in the work of the Mechanism and all human rights NGOs were encouraged to take part in the meetings based on their areas of interest.

B. Interactive dialogue and responses by the State under review

32. During the interactive dialogue, 75 delegations made statements. Recommendations made during the dialogue can be found in section II of the present report.

It also noted initiatives for human rights education. It encouraged Bulgaria to continue working on judicial reform. It made recommendations.

65. Côte d'Ivoire noted with appreciation the national reforms undertaken by Bulgaria, including the adoption of international human rights instruments. It made recommendations.

66. Cyprus commended Bulgaria for the measures adopted since the last universal periodic review cycle, the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, as well as the current initiatives to combat trafficking in human beings and eliminate discrimination. Cyprus made a recommendation.

67. The delegation of Bulgaria provided responses to a number of questions and statements made during the interactive dialogue. It reported on the projects that were funded from the State budget and implemented by NGOs to prevent domestic violence and to protect the victims. All activities had been regularly included in annual national programmes for prevention of and protection against domestic violence and necessary budgets had been allocated. Additionally, legal amendments had been drafted to improve the legal framework relating to domestic violence by taking into consideration the expertise of NGOs and the comments of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women.

68. In response to questions on some cases of racism and intolerance, the delegation stated that allegations of manifestation of racism and intolerance had been examined by relevant authorities and, where necessary, steps had been taken to prosecute and punish such acts. The delegation highlighted that Bulgaria did not have a strong record of such acts or manifestations. However, the authorities would continue being vigilant.

69. The delegation reported on several measures taken to ensure the rights of Roma to health care and employment and their social inclusion. The health and labour mediators, selected from the Roma community, served as a bridge between the public sector and that community. The number of health mediators had increased. Preventive medical check-ups were carried out in the Roma settlements and Roma children were immunized. A system of monitoring the Roma integration strategies had been set up and included a unified platform for collection of data at municipal, regional and national levels. Efforts had been made to support the employment of Roma.

70. The delegation stated that the principle of equality and non-discrimination was enshrined in the Constitution and legislation. The authorities continued their consistent policies aimed at preventing and eliminating all forms of discrimination, including against lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender persons. The Protection against Discrimination Act prohibited any direct or indirect discrimination based on a number of grounds, including gender and sexual orientation.

71. The right of children with disabilities to equal access to education was guaranteed by law. The legal framework ensured full integration of children with disabilities in the general education system.

72. In a response to a statement on alleged cases of discrimination, the delegation stated that there was no discriminatory treatment in connection with the construction of places of worship of religious denominations. Places of worship were constructed according to standard procedures and were not subject to any special requirements. Attacks against religious minorities were rather occasional and the perpetrators faced charges for hooliganism on the grounds of hatred.

73. The legislation on refugees and migrants had been harmonized with European Union standards and was in line with the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and the Optional Protocol thereto. Media campaigns had been carried out to create a favourable environment, supportive of the integration of refugees. The Government provided legal and social assistance, including free legal consultations, education, training, and interpretation services for foreigners seeking international protection. The living conditions of asylum seekers had improved.

74. The delegation reported on a number of measures that had been taken to combat human trafficking and to provide assistance to victims. The capacity of the National Commission for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings had been strengthened. Shelters for victims of human trafficking and specialized centres for protection and support of victims had been built. Referral mechanisms for victims had been developed. A national council for assistance and compensation for victims had been established. Various public campaigns had been carried out as a preventive measure. Bilateral and multilateral cooperation with relevant agencies and countries of destination had been achieved.

75. Regarding the questions on self-identification of ethnic groups, the delegation stated that the policy of Bulgaria on that issue was consistent with its obligations under the Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities of the Council of Europe. The right of minorities to exercise their culture was guaranteed by the Constitution and was ensured in practice for all ethnic groups without any obstacle. Furthermore, there were no restrictions to the freedom of association, and cultural identity had been exercised and developed without any impediment.

76. In answering the question on restitution of confiscated properties of a religious community by the communist regime, the delegation stated that the restitution of confiscated properties was made based on court decisions without any discrimination.

77. The delegation responded to a question on the use of minority languages during the pre-election campaigns. While the Constitution guaranteed the use of the mother tongue in many spheres of life, Bulgarian as a State language should, however, be used in pre-election campaigns. The delegation provided statistics on the number of schools where the Turkish language was taught to students belonging to the Turkish minority.

78. The Czech Republic noted with appreciation the response of the delegation to some of the advance questions. It made recommendations.

79. Denmark highlighted the widespread discrimination and intolerance against minorities, especially Roma. While noting the increasing flow of migrants and refugees, it underlined the challenge of ensuring that vulnerable people were treated fully in accordance with international standards. Denmark made recommendations.

81. El Salvador congratulated Bulgaria for the participative mechanism adopted for the preparation of its report as well as for the creation of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights and the importance given to the Ombudsman. It made recommendations.

82. Estonia encouraged Bulgaria to intensify its efforts in reforming the judiciary and combating corruption. It urged Bulgaria to criminalize domestic violence and marital rape specifically and to introduce the possibility of ex-officio prosecution for both offences. Estonia made recommendations.

83. Finland indicated that the positive effect of education on children's future should be communicated more efficiently to Roma parents. Finland welcomed the efforts to combat hate crimes and raise public awareness in order to enhance tolerance in the society. It made recommendations.

84. France commended the recent amendments to the Criminal Code limiting the criminal responsibility of minors and the creation of “blue rooms” allowing children to be heard by the judiciary. France requested more information about improvement in the care of minors. It made recommendations.

85. Georgia commended Bulgaria for the ratification of several human rights instruments and for efforts to reform the judiciary, strengthen the Ombudsman and combat corruption. It welcomed the establishment of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights and the decreasing number of children in specialized institutions. Georgia made recommendations.

86. Germany remained concerned about persisting discrepancies between the law on paper and the reality and about issues regarding the integration of refugees. Prevention and investigation of hate crimes by the authorities was inadequate. Germany made recommendations.

87. Ghana acknowledged the ratification of several international human rights instruments. It made recommendations.

88. Greece commended the practice of establishing working groups on the follow-up process of universal periodic review recommendations. It noted progress in achieving gender equality, the amendments adopted to strengthen the Council on Gender Equality and the awareness-raising initiatives on domestic violence. It made recommendations.

89. Hungary commended a number of programmes, strategies and action plans to improve the situation of Roma. It noted with satisfaction that Bulgaria had conducted free and fair elections in the previous October based on the new electoral law. Hungary made recommendations.

90. Indonesia noted the adoption of a decision for one-time payment of compensation to all individual complaints for which damages had been recommended by the United Nations treaty bodies and asked for further information on that matter. Indonesia made recommendations.

91. Iraq commended the establishment of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights, the National Integration Strategy for Individuals Granted International Protection, ratification of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, efforts made to strengthen the capacity of the Ombudsman and programmes aiming at reducing poverty. Iraq urged Bulgaria to ratify the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.

92. Ireland encouraged Bulgaria to continue progress in the area of gender equality. It urged Bulgaria to amend its legislation to criminalize domestic violence and marital rape. Ireland shared the concern expressed by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization that defamation remained a criminal offence. It made recommendations.

93. Israel was concerned by the reports on hate speech and attacks to places of worship and worshippers. It also noted that the Human Rights Committee had mentioned the low number of cases of domestic and gender-based violence brought to justice. Israel made recommendations.

94. Italy welcomed the priority assigned by Bulgaria to human rights education and to the fight against all forms of discrimination. Italy made recommendations.

95. Japan welcomed the ratification of the main international human rights instruments. Noting reports of poor conditions of detention, it called on Bulgaria to ensure the protection of human rights in its criminal justice procedures, particularly to improve the treatment of inmates. Japan made recommendations.

96. Kuwait appreciated the efforts of Bulgaria in implementing those recommendations that it had accepted during the first universal periodic review, which confirmed its commitment towards human rights. Kuwait made recommendations.
97. Libya welcomed the progress that Bulgaria had achieved since the first universal periodic review and commended it for its efforts to promote, respect and protect human rights. Libya encouraged Bulgaria to continue to strengthen and improve the effectiveness of the functioning of legislative and executive institutions.
98. Malaysia noted with appreciation the progress made in implementation of those recommendations that had been accepted relating to children's rights, all forms of violence and national human rights institutions. Malaysia noted the measures taken by Bulgaria to combat xenophobia, hate speech and human trafficking. It made recommendations.
99. Mexico welcomed the ratification of the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. It noted the reform of the judiciary and the willingness to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, considering that such efforts should be intensified. It made recommendations.
100. Montenegro encouraged Bulgaria to improve further the position of socially vulnerable children, particularly Roma children, and to continue developing national policies for tackling the issue of mixed migrations and asylum flows. It asked about the results achieved by the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights.
101. Morocco encouraged Bulgaria to continue working towards achieving the objectives of the "Bulgaria 2020" programme and the 2020 national strategy. It welcomed the measures taken in the area of human rights education and the ones aimed at fighting human trafficking. Morocco made recommendations.
102. Namibia noted with appreciation the establishment of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights and the adoption of the National Integration Strategy for Individuals Granted International Protection. It made recommendations.
103. The Netherlands noted with appreciation that the Protection from Discrimination Act that had been recently amended included protection from discrimination in cases of gender reassignment. It welcomed the efforts of Bulgaria to fight discrimination against lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender persons. The Netherlands made recommendations.
104. The Niger noted the establishment of the National Coordination Mechanism on Human Rights and the adoption of the legal amendments on the judicial system with a view to modernizing and ensuring the independence of the judiciary. It made a recommendation.
105. Nigeria commended Bulgaria for the judicial reform and for the 2020 national development programme and the 2020 national strategy for reducing poverty and promoting social inclusion with a view to reducing the number of people living in poverty. Nigeria made recommendations.
106. Norway noted ratification of a number of treaties and efforts to improve legislation and adopt strategies in the area of human rights. It commended Bulgaria for the reduction in school dropouts among Roma children. Norway made recommendations.
